Were at times very strongly marked. The early advance of to or so was largely on reported prairie fires said to be raging over several counties in Dakota and doing considerable damage to wheat. This talk started very general buying, the local crowd led by several large firms. The purchases by these firms were particularly heavy. The receipts, being lighter than were expected, were an additional help to generally reported that next Monday night's visible supply repeat would show a decrease of sonewhere about ditional buying. The advance was of ditional buying. The advance was of steady character, and a gregated a shade over 1c, the whole tone of the market being strong until well along toward the close, when values receded i@lc on sales to realize. The decline, however, was sub-sequently recovered, and the close was steady and firm at outside quotations for the day. Corn showed very few, if any, features, and was only moderately traded in. Offerings were not particularly heavy, and there were few orders of any size to fill. The ranges were within very narrow limits and the close quiet. Oats were very slow and generally easier at a lower range of prices, the market sagging down for want of support. Flour quiet and unchanged. Wheat opened easy at last night's closing figures, advanced ic, ruled steady for a while and then advanced to the steady for a while and New York 8-0ts opened quiet, and closed steady, new cotton offered at $\frac{1}{2}c$ below prices, quotations unchanged, and sales of 390 bales.
